ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

"FIRE MARSHAL ACT."

June 8th, 1934.

HIS HONOUR the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has been pleased to make the following regulations governing the sale, installation, maintenance, and use of compressed-gas systems, made pursuant to the "Fire Marshal Act" by Order in Council No. 702, approved the 7th day of June, 1934:—

REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE SALE, INSTALLATION, MAINTENANCE, AND USE OF COMPRESSED-GAS SYSTEMS.

(Pursuant to the "Fire Marshal Act.")

INTERPRETATION.

1. In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires:—

"Approved" means approved or of a make or standard approved by the Fire Marshal:

"Compressed-gas system" means the cylinders, piping, connections, and apparatus assembled in a system used or designed for use in the storage of gas under pressure for culinary purposes or for the heating or lighting of any building or part of a building:

"Cylinder" means any container in which gas is stored under pressure for use in a compressed-gas system:

"Officer" means the Fire Marshal, or any person on the staff of the Fire Marshal's office authorized by the Fire Marshal in writing to exercise the powers vested in an officer under these regulations, or any Local Assistant to the Fire Marshal constituted or appointed under section 7 of the "Fire Marshal Act," or any officer appointed by a Municipal Council to exercise the powers vested in an officer under these regulations.

APPLICATION OF REGULATIONS.

2. These regulations shall apply to the sale, installation, maintenance, and use of compressed-gas systems, including the handling and storage of charged and discharged cylinders and other equipment used in connection with compressed-gas systems; but shall not apply in respect of any building or plant devoted to the manufacture and compression of gas for use in compressed-gas systems, nor in respect of any compressed-gas system using acetylene gas.

SALE, INSTALLATION, AND USE OF COMPRESSED-GAS SYSTEMS.

3. After the first day of July, 1934, no person shall sell, offer for sale, or install any compressed-gas system unless the same has been approved. No person shall operate or use any compressed-gas system which is installed after the first day of July, 1934, unless the same has been installed in compliance with these regulations.

4. It shall be the duty of every dealer, before offering for sale or selling a compressed-gas system that has not been approved by the Fire Marshal, to obtain approval thereof, and for that purpose to file with the Fire Marshal a statement showing the name and address of the manufacturer and the trade-name of the system, together with a certificate of approval if any has been obtained from an authority acceptable to the Fire Marshal, and any other information the Fire Marshal may require. It shall also be the duty of every person selling or installing a compressed-gas system to see that there is securely attached to the assembled system a permanent marker showing the name of the manufacturer and the trade-name of the system.

5. No compressed-gas system shall be installed without first obtaining a permit in writing from an officer. Every application for such permit shall be in writing and shall show the trade-name of the system and the name and qualification of the person installing it.

6. All installations of compressed-gas systems shall be made by the dealer or a competent person appointed by him. A complete service manual shall be supplied by the dealer to all persons servicing or replenishing the supply of gas to these systems. Printed instructions for the operation and maintenance of the system shall also be supplied by the dealer. These instructions shall be printed in legible type, and shall be kept so as to be easily accessible for reference by the person operating the system.

CYLINDERS AND EQUIPMENT.

7. Only cylinders which are acceptable for railway transportation by freight, and which have been tested and marked to the effect that they comply with the specifications and regulations of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada respecting the use of cylinders for the shipment of compressed gases, shall be approved for use in any compressed-gas system.

8. The cylinders in use and the regulating equipment incorporated in a compressed-gas system shall be kept in an approved well-ventilated locked cabinet located not less than ten feet from any building. The discharge from relief-valves shall be located not less than ten feet from any opening in a building below the level of the discharge; but if this is not practicable the Fire Marshal, on request in writing, may permit the installation to be made otherwise. The cylinders shall be set on a firm foundation; but if this is not practicable the Fire Marshal may permit the installation of the cylinders with the use of special fittings and flexible couplings.

9. All extra cylinders shall be stored in a properly ventilated cabinet located outside the building containing the burners, or otherwise stored where they are protected from extreme heat and from any accumulation of ice or snow. No open lights or fires and no accumulation of rubbish or easily combustible material shall be allowed within ten feet of any cylinder. Where cylinders (whether charged or discharged) are not in use, all outlet-valves shall be kept tightly closed. Cylinders shall be protected at all times against mechanical injury and from being tampered with.

10. The charging or changing of cylinders shall be done only by daylight or by the light of an incandescent electric lamp equipped with a vapour-proof globe and a guard. No artificial light other than the vapour-proof guarded incandescent electric lamp shall be permitted within ten feet of any cylinder containing compressed gas. Electrical equipment, such as switches and other apparatus that may cause sparking, shall not be located in the vicinity of any cylinder or regulating-valve.

11. Where cylinders are charged by means of an automobile tank-truck the engine of the truck shall be stopped previous to any connections to the cylinders being made, and shall not be started until the charging is completed and the tank of the truck disconnected from the cylinders.

12. All valves incorporated in a compressed-gas system shall be of an approved type, and every system shall be supplied with adequate means for shutting off the gas-supply to the building containing the burners. The valves in the assembly of multiple-cylinder systems shall be arranged so that a change of cylinders may be made without shutting down the system.

13. All piping for conveying compressed-gas in a gaseous state to the building containing the burners and to all gas-burning appliances shall be standard full-weight wrought iron, steel, brass, or copper pipe, or approved seamless copper, brass, or other non-ferrous tubing. All pipe-lines leading from the regulator to the burners shall be proven free from leaks by being tested at not less than the maximum working-pressure as determined by the regulator setting.

14. In compressed-gas systems of a type in which compressed gas in a liquid form enters the building containing the burners, only heavy-walled seamless brass or copper tubing shall be used for conveying the compressed gas. The internal diameter of this tubing shall not be greater than three thirty-seconds of an inch nor less than three sixty-fourths of an inch. The lines of tubing shall be as short as possible, and shall be so attached and protected as to avoid injury. The lines of tubing shall be proven free from leaks by being tested at an air-pressure of not less than fifty pounds to the square inch for five minutes without showing any leakage. This test shall be made after all connections have been made.
